The first question for discussion is for the sisters, viz "Is it right under any circumstances to tell a fatsehood?" Opened by Mrs. Henry: Turner. Second question, "Resolved, that the most economical mode of supp ying stock feed or provender, is by purchasing fertilizers and glowing it." Affirm live, Z. A. Gilbert; Negative, F. A. Allen.

When the farm is near a good local market any of the small fruits can be grown and sold very proftably. If a few acres are devoted to garden ug, they can be grown. Poultry, if properly managed can be made to pay better than three times the space devoted to wheat and corn. Where the farm is too far from market to grow perishable articles, such as green vegetables or small fruits, profitably, vegetables that can be sold in a dry state can be made quite a source of revenue, and should not be neglected as it is on many faims. Each individual ti er of the soil must decide for himself what new departure he will make imcouncetion with the regularbranches of farming. The one, who succeeds in having his marketable product a . little better than o ters in the market, will. not only find a reaction sale for the same but at more profits de figures. It is the observance of these minor points that insures a farmer success.
